THOUSANDS FLEE TO SAFETY WITH SEVEN KNOWN DEAD

RIVER PASSES FLOOD STAGE

Scioto Steadily Rising With More Rain Reported To Fall Tonight.

ROUTE 56 CLOSED

River at 13.6-Foot Stage Dr.
Clarke Says.

Rising slowly, but steadily with more rain falling and more predicted it was expected momentarily this afternoon that the Scioto river would inundate the Williamsport-pk. west of this city.

The river was beyond the usual flood stage of 13 feet, Dr. H. R.
Clarke, weather observer, declared but because most of the water was confined to the channel, the road has not yet been covered. The stream, Dr. Clarke said, was at the 13.6-foot stage
Monday morning and was then rising slowly.

A heavy rain north of Pick-away-co Sunday caused the river to reach huge proportions.

So far, the only road leading from Circleville into other cities which is impassable is route 56 into Athens. This highway was passable early Sunday but was closed later in the day.

The highway department was ready to detour traffic from the Williamsport-pk just as soon as water crosses the road.

ANOTHER PLOT TO KILL HITLER AIRED

Adolf Hitler was thwarted by police today.

Only a few days ago, Count
Anton Arco-Valley, who assassinated former Premier Kurt Eisner of Bavaria in 1919, was arrested for plotting against the Nazi chancellor's life.

Police announced that leaders of the new conspiracy planned to end Hitler's life with a bomb.

OHIO STILL RISING

Flood Termed Worst Since
in 1913

CINCINNATI, March 20.—
Flood waters raged through the Ohio river valley today from the West Virginia line to Louisville, spreading its toll of destruction
through four states—Ohio, West Virginia, Kentucky and Indiana.
Seven persons were known to have died in the flooded area.

With the water level pushing steadily higher as rain-swollen tributaries emptied rushing torrents into the Ohio river, the flood was characterized as the worst since 1913.

More than a score of cities and towns have been damaged by the rush of water from the Ohio itself. The flood has inundated thousands of acres of fertile farm land, submerged long stretches of highways and covered railroad tracks in the lowlands.

CINCINNATI HIT

Tributaries of the Ohio were steadily rising above Cincinnati, spreading beyond their banks to cover the countryside and add to the Ohio's torrent.

Hundreds of families have been driven from their homes where they have sought shelter on higher ground.

At Portsmouth, the mayor last night issued a proclamation warning the citizens to be ready to flee as the swollen waters beat against the river-wall protecting the city. All highways leading to the city have been covered.

In Newport, Ky. the Ohio was eight feet above the flood stage and still rising with 35 city blocks under water.

Tributaries pouring their flood waters across vast areas of farm land and into towns and villages
were the Licking, the two Miamis
the Big Sandy and the Muskingum.

Four Ohio counties Adams, Jackson, Pike and Scioto, were practically marooned.

Rescuers in small boats were attempting to reach hundreds of marooned persons.

DEAD ARE LISTED

Although seven are known to have drowned, a heavier loss of life is feared, particularly in the rural communities.

Three men were drowned at Covington, Ky. when water swept their automobile into a creek.
They were Henry Linneman,
George Heideman and John Bain.

Mrs. John Harrison and a 7-year-old daughter, Allee, were drowned when their automobile plunged into a lagoon at Gallipoli's Gale Thrift, 13, died at California, Ky. when a rowboat carrying four youths overturned.
Charles Stephens died at Lawrenceburg, Ind.

East Cincinnati and its suburbs were severely damaged as the rising flood waters forced thousands to abandon their homes and seek protection at city fire and police agent of water from the Little Miami river was eating at the protecting levee in the lower east end of Cincinnati.

Predictions of cold weather, with possibly snow flurries, brought threats of additional discomforts to the flood-stricken valley.

Although it was impossible to make any estimate of the total damage being done by the sweeping rush of the high waters, it was expected that they would run into the millions of dollars. The overflow of the river is the worst since the destructive flood of 1913.

THOUSANDS HOMELESS

Throughout the valley, scores of villages were wholly or partly water-logged. Particularly distressed were the lowland regions of Kentucky directly opposite Cincinnati. High waters forced 1200 families from their homes in Newport, while 500 families were forced to flee to safer levels in Covington. One thousand families were reported homeless in Cincinnati.

Increasing the flood dangers of the Ohio river was the fact that numerous Ohio tributaries, flushed with recent rains and cloudbursts, were pouring their waters into the main stream at a volume beyond its capacity to flow off.

ZANGARA PAYS FOR CERMAK'S DEATH TODAY

Assassin, Who Tried to Kill President Roosevelt,
Executed

DIES DURING STORM

Sputters Prophecy Before
Meeting Death

By TARLETON COLLIER—
International News Service Staff Correspondent and witness at the Execution

RAIFORD, Fla., March 20.—The law drew the curtain on an American tragedy today, snuffing out the flame of hatred incarnate that was Giuseppe Zangara.

Mayor Anton Cermak's slayer died swiftly in Florida's electric chair at 9:18 o'clock, a single blast of current, prolonged for only 30 seconds, ending a last unregenerate tirade, silencing a tongue bitter to the end.

PAID FOR CRIME

As if in compensation for the passionate better-skeller of that moment in Miami's Bayfront park
when the swarthy little man blazed away at Franklin D. Roosevelt and wounded five persons in a wild fusillade, the end of the chapter was a precise and cold display of the law's inevitable process.

The venom of Zangara's spirit
stabbed there for a little moment, but it seemed feeble in that gloomy, clammy chamber, where ram drove against two high windows and strove against his voice.

Zangara railed at all capitalists.
He boasted of death for them all.
But most of all, he lamented the absence of photographs.

"No cameras, hey? Hey?" he inquired as the heavy strap's embrace caught him firmly into the chair. "Nobody to take my picture, hey? Capitalist. All you capitalists—"

Zangara's last words the black mask of the death cap was drawn about his face, was a challenge to his executioners.

"Go ahead, push the button,"
he cried. "Go ahead."
That seemed pure taunt and bravado.

Dan Hardie, sheriff of Dade-co,
who was to throw the switch according to the Florida custom which gives that grim office to the law officer of the county where the crime occurred, warned him gravely, not unkindly.

"Just a minute, Joe."

"PUSHA THE BUTTON"

There was a moment's wait as the electrician fumbled with the connections. It was a tough job.
Zangara was so small, his shaven head was so tiny that the heavy helmet slipped and shook upon it.
There was an obvious fear that the connections would not be precise.
The electricians worked nervously.

Presently the muffled voice came again.
"Push the button."
That may have been despera-

BRUTAL MURDER, THEN SUICIDE, HORRIFIES CINCINNATI POLICE

Indianapolis Real Estate Man, Stopped By Police Who Find Body of Wife Cut Into 14 Pieces, Stuffed Into Household Utensils, Slashes Throat With Razor.

CINCINNATI, March 20.—Two mutilated bodies, one of them a woman butchered into 14 pieces, lay in the county morgue here today awaiting to be claimed by relatives, shocked over one of the most brutal murder-suicide tragedies ever written into the annals of Cincinnati police history.

The bodies were those of Mrs.
Ella Evans, 42, and her husband,
Charles D. Evans, 50, Indianapolis, Ind., real estate dealer.

The body of Mrs. Evans was found stuffed in cooling utensils hidden under a tarpaulin in her husband's automobile when police stopped the car here yesterday to question Evans regarding the 1932 license plates.

A few minutes later, Evans had fatally slashed his throat despite efforts of police to prevent him.

DOMESTIC TROUBLES

Although relatives, horrified by the tragedy, were unable to advance a motive for the brutal murder and suicide, a letter found among Evans' personal effects instructed him to pay his wife $25 in alimony every two weeks lest police to suspect domestic troubles and estrangement.

Before taking his own life,
Evans screamed:
"She threatened to shoot me."

When first stopped by the police, Evans appeared highly agitated and nervous. Replying to the query about his 1932
license plates, he declared: "Oh, I've got until the first of April to get new ones."

Suspicious that there might be liquor stowed under the tarpaulin in the back of the car, the police began poking into the car.
At first they noticed nothing
but a stack of household goods. Then, one of the officers reached into a pan. His hand felt cold flesh.

"What's this?"

MAN USES RAZOR

Fidgeting, Evans answered,
"That's ham. I killed a hog."
While the officer pondered the fact that "it didn't feel like ham," Evans suddenly reached into his vest pocket and quickly whipped out a razor. The police leaped at him. One of them fired his revolver at the upflung hand grasping the razor. They were too late, however. The man fatally slashed himself about the throat.

Before he succumbed, Evans

TANK BLAST KILLS WOMAN INSTANTLY IN SALT CREEK-TWP

Mrs. Marilyn Gorman, Domestic, Crushed as Tank Bursts

3 OTHERS UNHURT

Ira Shisler Home is Scene
of Accident

Mrs. Marilyn Gorman, aged 35, was instantly killed Saturday at 7
p. m. when a huge cold water compression tank in the basement of the Ira Shisler home, near Laurelville, exploded. Mrs. Gorman was employed as a domestic at the Shisler home.

According to Dr. C. E. Bowers, county coroner, the blast was caused by a faulty valve on the pump attached to the tank.

Mrs. Shisler and her eleven year old daughter were in the same room with Mrs. Gorman when the explosion occurred.
Neither were injured beyond a few scratches.

According to Coroner Bowers
the Shislers and Mrs. Gorman were eating supper and Mr. Shisler had inquired of Mrs. Gorman whether or not the pump on the tank had been running long enough. Mrs.
Gorman had answered in the negative.

DROVE THROUGH HOUSE

Mr. Shisler a little later left the supper table and started for the basement to turn off the pump when the explosion occurred. The upper part of the tank or cone came straight up through the kitchen floor directly under Mrs.
Gorman hurling her against a table and continuing through the ceiling into the bathroom, bursting the ceiling there and bulging the roof.

Mrs. Gorman's body was badly crushed, as both arms were broken between the elbow and shoulder.
The entire thoracic cavity was crushed, the right temple was badly bruised and the left leg was broken from knee to hip. The pelvic bone and shoulder bones and the collar bone were crushed, according to Coroner Bowers.

The tank, which has between 400 and 500 gallon capacity, after striking the roof fell straight back and just missed by about an inch of setting on its base.

DAMAGE ABOUT $500

The hole which was torn in the floor and ceiling is about six feet square and the total property damage was fixed at about $500.

Mrs. Gorman is survived by her mother and stepfather, Mr. and Mrs. Linden Johnson of Columbus, and a sister, Mrs. Charles Buckner of Richmond, Ohio.

The body was taken to the H.
E. Deffenbaugh funeral home then was removed to Chillicothe.

BEER ACTION SEEN

WASHINGTON, March 20.—
Administration leaders were hop-of the dispute between House and Senate over the "kick" to be allowed in legalized beer and wine.

The beer bill, recommended by President Roosevelt as an economic relief measure, was tied up between the two branches of Congress. If the dispute can be settled today, the American people will be able to purchase beer, perhaps wine by April 5.

House and senate was divided over the question of legalizing 3.2 or 3.05 percent beer. This controversy must be settled to the satisfaction of both branches before the bill can be enacted and sent to the White House for Mr.
Roosevelt's signature.

the partner of Louis Green, who pleaded guilty to receiving stolen

Unheralded Dover Team Wins State Tournament

Value of Team-work With No Individual Stars Proved By Titans, Whose Coach Helped Win First Championship in 1927; Lawrenceville Proves Class B's Outstanding Team.

COLUMBUS, March 20.—Almost unanimously, the wise men of Ohio basketball agreed today that the Dover high school team which won the class A championship Saturday is to be accorded a place high among the state's basketball immortals.

The champions returned to their textbooks this morning—and a sad comedown it was—but the statewide praise for themselves and their youthful coach, the handsome Herman Rearick, was only starting.

The facile manner in which they walked into the state championship Saturday night by defeating Marietta, 34 to 23, convinced many of the experts that they have certain of the fleeting elements of greatness.

2 ON ALL-TOURNEY

Sports writers made this discovery when they started choosing an all-tournament team. Four Dover players—Keller, center; Braun and Maurer, guards, and Kilar, forward—appeared worthy. But sports writers are not naive enough to pick all the star players for all-star team; instead they divide up the prizes, and the stranger the line-ups they present, agreed to by nobody—are pointed to as certain evidence of their genius.

Keller and Braun were chosen on the official all-tournament team; instead, they divide up the prizes, and the stranger the line-ups they present, agreed to by nobody—are pointed to as certain evidence of their genius.

That the Dover team should prove to have four of the outstanding individual players at the tournament is ample evidence of its talents, considering that it was

SHOOT WILD GOATS

ROOKIES HOLD TIGERS' HOPE

Harris Leeks To Rowe and Greenburg To Help Detroit In Race.

SAN ANTONIO, March 20.—A young infield and outfield and a well balanced division of veterans and up-and-coming youngsters on the pitching staff, have contributed the elements that should place the Detroit Tigers high in the American league pennant race this year. Manager "Bucky" Harris, enthusiastic in the conviction that he has the best team he ever managed, is placing the bright high hopes of the Detroit fans upon the shoulders of two boys from Beaumont, of the Texas league.

Lynwood "Schoolboy" Rowe, mammoth 208-pound right hander, who won 19 and lost 7 for the Beaumont Exporters last year, is to carry "Bucky's" hopes to demolish the batting power of Cleveland and Philadelphia and make some mighty inroads into the Yankee averages.

GREENBURG HOPE

Harris expects a lot from Rowe and that side-arm curve and fast ball which did so much for the Exporters last year. But the Tigers' big gamble this year is on Hank Greenburg, 210-pound first baseman for Beaumont last year, who is being tried out at third base.

Hank batted .290 with the Exporters last year and led the Texas league in home runs with 39. If Hank works out well at third the infield utility job will go to Henry Schuble, and Bill Rogell and Marvin Owen will fight it out for shortstop.

Owen batted .317 with Newark last year and played first base. Rogell was the regular shortstop last season. Harris has a staff of nine pitchers. Charles Fischer from St. Louis; Fred Marberry from Washington; Thomas Bridges, the boy who pitched an almost perfect game for the Tigers last year, who finished with low earned run average, 3.36; Elton Hoggett, George Uhle, John Wyatt, and Victor Sorrell.

Orlin Collier, Luke Hamlin, Francis Nikola, Arthur Herring and Isadore Goldstein are fighting it out for the ninth position. Nikola, a southpaw, looks to have the edge.

SLAKE ON STRIKE

BUDAPEST.—The hunger strike of a 12-foot Brazilian boa snake of the Budapest Zoo was stopped by force. The snake arrived from Brazil about a year ago and refused to eat. Four attendants opened her mouth at the anniversary of her arrival and poured into it the contents of thirty raw eggs by means of a rubber tube. The snake will be fed this way until she decides to take her meals normally.

GEPHART RENAMED

Local High School Man Re-elected President of Central Buckeye Scholastic League; Plans Made for Track, Golf and Swimming Contests.

In return for excellent work as president of The Central Buckeye league for the past two years, E. I. Gephart, principal of Circleville high school, was elected to fill this position for the third straight year when officials of the league met of the Hotel Fort Hayes, Columbus, Saturday.

Dwight W. Blausner, Grandview, was also named to a third term as secretary of the league.

The spring sport schedule was arranged during the meeting with track, golf and swimming championships to be determined. The track meet, under the direction of Carlton Smith, Bexley coach, will be held Saturday, May 6, with the site yet to be determined. C. W. Zwarg of Grandview will be in charge of the golf meet and Frank Ballenger of Westerville in charge of the swimming meet. Details have been worked out for neither of these contests however.

The 1933 basketball championship was officially awarded to Delaware.

Ross, Delaware's flashy forward, led the league in individual scoring, according to Blausner's official point standings. Ross made 92 points for an average of 9.2 points per game. He amassed this total on 42 field goals and eight free throws.

Marvin Westerville center, capped second honors with 89. Collector Delinquent; Township Has Surplus

Altoona, Pa.—Allegheny township, Blair county, had a surplus in its treasury as the new year started because of the delinquencies of a tax collector.

Frank Ertl, collector of school, county and road taxes for many years, was accused of converting $17,641 of tax money to his own use over a four-year period. He was arrested, tried and sent to prison.

Bondsmen for the tax collector gave the township a check for $11,500 and agreed to return to the district back tax delinquencies aggregating $8,758 in duplicate of the case. Officials estimate about 50 percent of the back taxes can be collected.

With these funds deposited in the bank, the township was able to meet 1933 with a balanced budget and a treasury surplus.

Boston.—(Press photo) The Boston public library's official cat, for which $10 is appropriated annually for food, milk and salmon, has had his tail cut from the bill of fare for the first time in a job. If Mayor J. M. Curley's pencil cuts much longer into the budget, Public Library cats may be deprived of their food, milk and salmon, and find their tails cut off.

forecast for the Week

By R. FREDERIC KANE

Monday March 20.—The morning hours will not be good for traveling. Accidents will be numerous on this day. Enter into no kind of partnership deal, especially in the morning hours.

Tuesday, March 21.—Do not start anything new or enter into any kind of business deal in the late hours of this day. "If you do, you cannot expect much good to come out of the arrangement. At the best only hard work will result."

Wednesday, March 22.—This will be a good day to move and to make changes in your affairs. This especially applies to the afternoon hours. Keep your temper under control on this day and avoid arguments and places where there might be a chance of accident.

Thursday, March 23.—Around 8 a. m. you may be inclined to be somewhat quarrelsome so watch your step. Another day when accidents will be common. Avoid trouble in your home. No over-eat. Late in the evening the adverse planetary vibrations will affect those born from February 27 to March 1. And if your birthday falls on any of these dates you had better be careful as to what you eat and drink. You may get poisoned or suffer from severe indigestion.

Friday, March 24.—Around ten o'clock in the morning do not make any important business deals which you could put off until later in the day. The afternoon will be the time for business of importance.

Saturday, March 25.—This is a day of good planetary vibrations. Make the most of it.

threw a roll of bills, totaling $152, at the feet of the policeman.

"Give this to my mother," he said.

In addition to the alimony letter, a wedding ring, apparently taken from the murdered woman's hand before she was put to death, was found in a pocket of Evans' clothing.

Examining the dismembered remains of the woman's body, Coroner M. Scott Kearns asserted she had been dead for several hours. He declared that the job of dismembering the body "looked like the work of a butcher who knew how to sever at the joints."

Police believe that Evans hacked his wife to death and dismembered the body at Indianapolis, after which he packed the remains in his automobile and started for some place to dispose of them.

MILES OF CIGGIES

OTTAWA, Canada.—Enough cigarettes were manufactured in Canada last year to reach 190,000 miles, if laid end to end, the Government Bureau of Statistics estimated. The production equals about 428 fags for every man, woman and child in the Dominion.

Fighting "Love Pirate" Suit

No clouds, either of salary cuts, impending court suits or rumors of marital unhappiness, were on the horizon when this picture of Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., and his wife, Joan Crawford, screen stars, was made when they returned from a European vacation last year. Now Doug is surrounded with a flock of such clouds, the blackest of which is the $50,000 alienation of affections suit brought by Jorgen Dietz, Hollywood engineer, who claims Fairbanks stole the love of his wife, Solveig. Dietz asks $10,000 in another suit in which he charges Doug with causing him to suffer false imprisonment.

Many Happy Days With The Herald Wonder Package

The introduction of a new special service to women is of considerable interest during these trying times. An entirely new and very simple method of transferring patterns has been perfected, and now can be obtained by women anywhere.

Patch work quilt patterns, applique, cross-stitch, silhouettes, children's pictures of objects they love, beautiful embroidery patterns in the most comprehensive collection ever made. 800 new and exclusive designs in one package, also three alphabets—Script, Old English and Japanese in three sizes of letters.

Just select your design from the collection, rub the bowl of a tablespoon over the moistened surface, and like magic, you have the design transferred to your cloth, wood, paper, or any surface you desire to decorate. So easy that even a child can do it, and they love to transfer the special children's patterns to the leaves of a scrap book to be painted or colored with crayons later.

Each pattern can be used 12 times, and the uses are so diverse, and the number so great that it is not ever exaggerating to say the Wonder Package contains a lifetime supply of patterns. This illustration shows you the pictures of the patterns found on just one-half of one of the big sheets. There are 12 large sheets, some containing as many as 20 designs on a half page.

If you use the pattern on cloth for embroidery, you will be pleased also to know that the transfer washes out easily, which was not true of the old indeleb ink transfers made with the hot iron.

Try the daisy spray on a delicate pastel tinted negligee. Work in dainty colors using lazy daisy and French knot stitches. Trim edges with val lace, and you will have a delicately beautiful garment.

The gracefully shaped French Basket Design is a thing of beauty, either in embroidery or painted on wood, paper, or parchment, with its bouquet of Canterbury Bells, and other blossoms done in colors. To know these designs is to love them. Get the package and if you are not doing hand work of any kind now, it will be a satisfaction to have a supply on hand when you need it in the future.

You can have the package mailed to you for $1.00, but if you can call for it, it is only 88c. This Wonder Package may be had at The Herald office.

Enclosed please find $1.00 for which I wish you would send me the Wonder Package of over 800 transfer patterns.

PROMOTERS of PROSPERITY

It pays to stand by your own community.

That is one reason why Circleville and the villages in Pickaway County have been able to withstand the severities of the present depression as well as they have. Without this loyalty on the part of the citizenship in keeping the large bulk of their business patronage right at home the money earned in the community is largely spent right here and is thus kept circulating so that it is not drained away into other centers as is the case in so many cities where the real pinch has hit so hard.

Circleville and Pickaway County citizens are to be congratulated upon this spirit of loyalty to their own communities. It spells a high morale and now that hard times have come it is standing the various communities well in hand aiding in tiding over until things pick up again. If all the money or even a large part of it was spent elsewhere than right here in our home city and home villages the undue in service pokes its head out at us—and that is that we would have failures in business and be left comparatively robbed of the conveniences of having our trading centers right at our doors.

So many angles of disadvantage present themselves to one who makes a study of these bad practices—this sending of money away from the home town that it makes one all the more loyal once he finds out just how far things may drift unless this habit is checked.

If you would learn who are standing by ready to serve you in many capacities with goods or service you will find on this page names and firms which carry with them a guarantee of excellence in service or goods. You will also find on comparison that you can do your buying at home much cheaper than you can abroad if you take into consideration the outlays you make in going and coming to do this outside buying. And you will also find quality and excellence in service which you will not find elsewhere always more you have your home merchant or service man here where if errors or mistakes are made to correct them, for none of them would think of not making good their offers in both goods or service and in keeping quality foremost. That means much for the out-of-town merchant's mistakes are so often uncorrected ones and the distance away but multiplies the added troubles which come when effort is made to have any errors corrected.

Right now this thought of home town loyalty should be kept ever fresh in mind for it is doubly needed to make your home town stay in a class all by itself even as it has all during the depression, so much so as to bring forth favorable comment from economists and keen observers in many other lines of human activity.

CHAPTER THIRTY-SEVEN

Congreve had not yet written that line so opposite to Captain Leach's case: "Woman is a fair image in a pool; he who leaps at her is sunk." But if he had written it, and Captain Leach, acquainted with it, had perceived in it a warning to him now, in a double sense of which the poet had no thought, he must still have disregarded it. For if, contrary to custom where his desires were concerned, the buccaneer may have chanced to weigh the consequences of what he contemplated, it follows that he did not want it.

It was within those consequences—unless he were exceptionally fortunate—that he would have to reckon with de Bernis. But when had he ever shrunk from a reckoning? What man had ever made him quail, or deviate by a hand's breadth from an evil goal? He would take a short way with that impudent, supercilious Frenchman whose days, indeed, were already numbered.

To Bartholomew Sands he did not even give a thought. The fellow was utterly negligible. And he would have accounted de Bernis just as negligible save that the consequences of quieting him would involve abandoning the enterprise of the Spanish plate fleet. This might make trouble with the buccaneers. But Leach would justify himself with the tale that de Bernis had attacked him, and that he had killed him in self-defense. Very probably, he thought, with a grin, the tale would be true.

As for the loss to himself of his share of the Spanish gold, what was all the treasure of Spain to him compared with this other treasure which lay ready to his hand, tormenting him with its irresistible allurements?

In his madness either he did not reflect, or else he was impatient of the reflection, that, by the exercise of patience and by proceeding according to the intentions which Wogan had first inspired in him, he might reduce into possession both the treasure and the girl. Patience was in the eyes of Tom Leach a weakness, almost a form of cowardice.

And so you see he purposely crossing that beach, so soon as Monsieur de Bernis and his companion had passed into the wood, and gaining the threshold of the hut, in the shade of which Priscilla sat now alone.

Something in his attitude, above all the leer with which, bareheaded, he appeared before her, instantly shattered that sense of security in her which had seemed so solidly founded on the manifest chivalry of Monsieur de Bernis.

Looking up, she strove to conceal the sudden alarmed flutter in her breast. If her eyes dilated a little, at least she compelled her utterance to be calm, level, and unharmed.

"You seek my husband, sir. He is not here."

The leer broadened. "I know that," he said. "I saw him go. So, ye see, it's not him I seek."

On that he paused. His close-set eyes were pondering her, so white and slim and golden. They stripped away the long-waisted gown of green taffetas with the ivory-colored lace bordering the low-cut line of neck, and gazed at her and beheld her once again as he had seen her yesterday in the pool. And yet, for all his ardour, he faltered a little, now that he was face to face with her, now that his eyes met the clear, candid gaze of eyes from which she spiritedly banished every trace of fear. He knew now that she was not a girl, but a woman, direct, and brutal, like all else that he did. Yet here instinct informed him that something other was demanded; that too rude a grasp

It is just as important to encourage the interchange of money as the interchange of citizens, and yet the United States has devoted its efforts to making it easy for Canadians to cross the international line. Business men in the United States would find it to their financial advantage to encourage a wider interchange of the currency of their friendly neighbor.

We all do things without thinking, and one is being bored with life.

"I loves a lass o' spirit, I do." He flung himself down on the ground at her feet.

might merely crush this fruit for which he thirsted.

He was glad, therefore, of an inspiration which had come to him that morning and which was responsible for the line he took. From an inner pocket of his faded scarlet coat he drew a little leather bag. He untied the neck of it as he came forward to stand by the table.

"I've brought thee a little gift," he said. He opened the mouth of the bag, and, placing his right hand as a barrier on the table, prevented the contents from rolling too far, he poured forth a dozen shimmering, lustrous pearls of price.

"Beauties, isn't they?" Still leaning over the table, he grinned up at her in expectancy, for she had risen from her seat.

He had experience of the queer fascination such toys can exercise upon a woman. More than once he had seen covetous gleam in a woman's eyes as they considered those lovely, lightly iridescent spheres, and a hunger of possession whose gratification was not to be denied, whatever the cost. He had memories of reluctance, defeated in Campeche, in Tortuga, in Mariegalante and elsewhere by just a couple of these seductive baubles. Never yet had he poured out as a gift to a woman so incredible a cascade as this; but then never yet had he seen a woman so incredibly desirable.

Every man's view of life is based upon his own experiences. Like drawing like into its intimacies, the vile man meets only villainy and therefore accounts the world vile. So it was with some confidence that this crude animal displayed his dazzling offering.

The result, however, was not at all what he expected. If for a moment—breathless to him—her eyes were caught and held by those gleaming orbs, in the next they were regarding him so oddly and coldly that it was clear she had entirely escaped their fascination.

"I do not think my husband would wish me to accept a gift."

So that was it. She went in fear of that pestilent husband.

"Dart husband! There's pearls, aye, and beauties. Fit for thee neck they is. They mind me of you, sink me. Just as sleek and lovely as thee, my pearly lass."

Frozen in a make-believe composure, she coldly answered him: "Th

PATRONAGE AWAITS PROGRAM PASSAGE

WASHINGTON, March 20

As thousands of job applicants in Ohio and 47 other states wistfully awaited encouragement from the national capital this week, evidence accumulated that distribution of federal patronage is to be deferred until problems involving the welfare of all the people have been disposed of.

Deserving Ohio Democrats are being counseled to display patience and are given assurance that orderly organization procedure is to be followed in the award of positions. In accordance with an understanding reached by the administration, Senator Robert J. Bulkley, Democratic members of the house, Henry G. Brunner, chairman of the Democratic state executive committee, and W. A. Julian, national committeeman from Ohio, harmonious co-operation is to mark the distribution.

Ohio applicants are required to obtain first the endorsements of their county committees. These must be submitted with their applications for the particular post they seek to Senator Bulkley and the congressmen. Recognizing the right of these elected representatives to determine their preferences without any attempted dictation, Chairman Brunner and the executive committee are refraining from the presentation of any organization slate. Likewise they are declining to favor in advance any individual aspirants. Thus they are according all fair and impartial treatment.

LEADERS TO CONFER

When the time arrives to make selections Chairman Brunner, Committeeman Julian, Senator Bulkley, the congressmen, and Postmaster General Farley, representing the administration, will confer. Earnest consideration of the qualifications of each applicant to render public service will

Carol's Magda Shot

Mrs. Magda Lupescu, the third side in the marital triangle of King Carol of Rumania, who, according to reports from Paris, was shot and slightly wounded in Bucharest. The King's favorite, who was recently reported to have borne a son, was wounded in the shoulder. An anti-Semite, Jon Vargo, was arrested by police, but the matter was hushed up, says the report.

place to be filed, their final decisions are to bring regrettable disappointment to many in spite of scrupulous adherence to their policy of fairness.

The Roosevelt administration now in its third week of breath-taking activity continues its assault upon major problems with the assurance of a skilled surgeon confident that his methods of operation will save a desperately stricken patient. Within two weeks of his inauguration and within a week of the assembling of Congress in extraordinary session, President Franklin D. Roosevelt had caused to be written into law these three emergency measures:

Banking legislation which reopened most of the nation's banks under government certification of their soundness and catapulted the country toward early restoration of normal financial and economic conditions.

The economy bill empowering the president to slash pay of government employees not to exceed 15 per cent, drastically revise the payments made to war veterans and eliminate compensation for non-service-connected disability, in his program for reducing expenditures at least a half billion dollars in these items alone.

The beer bill modifying the Volstead act to legalize the sale of beer and wines of acceptable alcoholic content, and to enable the federal government to collect $125,000,000 or more annually in taxes on such beverages.

On the way to enactment as this week's sessions of Congress began was the president's fourth far-reaching relief measure, providing for the curtailment of crop production and revival of the farmers' purchasing power. And a fifth proposal—for appropriation of $500,000,000 for a program to create employment—was ready for consideration of the lawmakers.

PRICES GO UP

As a wave of optimism swept over the nation, as stock and bond prices reflected new hope and confidence, as thousands of telegrams poured in upon the president applauding his policies, he drove ahead with undiminished vigor, determined to complete his preliminary program before vacating a recess of Congress.

In Unique Marital Tangle

Although it is customary for one to keep a prize after winning it three times, there seems to be a different rule for matrimony. Giles P. Wetherill (above), son of Colonel and Mrs. Samuel J. Wetherill, of Philadelphia, wooed and won his wife, Mrs. Justine Jordan Wetherill, three times and lost her three times via the divorce court. Not only that but he was held in $800 bail on a statutory offense charged by the three-time ex-wife, who is shown in court.

YOUTH KIDNAPED

MASURY, March 20.—While police of two states waged a desperate search for the abductors, an anxious father and mother today nervously awaited further information from the three gunmen who seized 16 year old Peter Myers Jr., here late Saturday, and carried him away in an automobile.

A note was left behind by the kidnapers, who grabbed the boy on the doorstep of his own home. It read:

"Keep your mouth shut. Don't tell police, our agent will see you."

This message, scrawled on a piece of paper, was thrust into the hands of Milo Stevens, an employee at the gasoline filling station operated here by the lad's father, as the armed trio sped away with the youth.

MASONS TO HEAR FORMER SECRETARY

Plans have been completed by the Wilmington Masonic Lodge to entertain many visiting Masons from surrounding towns on the occasion of their monthly program meeting on March 21st.

Ohio's former Secretary of State, Clarence J. Brown, an active and outstanding Mason in his home Lodge, will be the speaker. The subject chosen for his address here is "Glancing Backward but Looking Forward." Since Mr. Brown enjoys such a wide reputation as an interesting and forceful speaker, an attendance that will tax the seating capacity of the lodge is expected. The meeting is scheduled for 7:30 o'clock.

All Masons are cordially invited.

tion and suspense, born of the lingering black seconds. There was no more. The black mask had covered a bitter, resolute smile, a grimace that it seemed he had set upon his face with deliberation and plan. It had twisted his wide mouth in a semblance of a sneer as he entered the death chamber at 9:10, a tiny figure dwarfed by the two robust guards who flanked him.

To the cluster of witnesses who sat or stood about the narrow chamber, Zangara appeared so suddenly that most were startled. They had entered, dripping with rain, and filed into the seats. Those who could find no places sidled against the walls, and Prison Superintendent Chapman called a roll of twelve legal witnesses who had been specially summoned. They settled themselves nervously, but there was no time for suspense. Zangara was there upon them, silent like an apparition.

He moved to Superintendent Chapman, who stood at the wall, about the middle of the room, and without a word thrust into the latter's hands three note books of the sort used by stenographers. "Here," he said, "Here my book. Take it."

It was this, apparently, in which he had boasted of writing his revolutionary doctrines, the message of hate that he said would fire a destruction of capitalism. Chapman thrust them into an inner pocket, refusing view of them and saying later that they contained only an indecipherable and illiterate scrawl. It is likely they will find a place in federal government records.

TURNED TO CHAIR

Having delivered this boasted document, Zangara turned back toward his guards and the chair.

So closely did the straps hold the doomed man when fastened that the galvanized stiffening of joints and muscles was all but imperceptible.

Thrown on at 2,300 volts, the full power of the line, the current was stepped down to less than 1,000, up again, down again, and then after 30 seconds to 2,000.

At Kite's sudden whispered command, Hardie pulled out the switch. The dreadful low humming ceased. The tiny body relaxed beneath the straps.

Zangara, as a group of six physicians ascertained after three minutes of probing for pulse and heart beat, was dead.

The body was moved at once to the prison hospital, where three physicians were to perform an autopsy. Tomorrow it will be taken to a corner of the Sandy Flat prison reservation where are buried the forgotten men whom no one claims.

Zangara's grave will be unmarked, save on the prison map.

RADIOS IN EGYPT

CAIRO.—While Egypt is of comparatively minor importance as a market for radio equipment at the present time, sales of American equipment to that country during the first ten months of 1932 totaled approximately $17,000 compared with $13,600 in the corresponding period of 1931, ranking the United States first as a supplier of radio equipment to this market.

It's FUN TO BE FOOLED ...IT'S MORE FUN TO KNOW

A trick frequently worked in cigarette advertising is the illusion that mildness in a cigarette comes from mysterious processes of manufacture.
EXPLANATION: All popular cigarettes today are made in modern sanitary factories with up-to-date machinery. All are heat treated—some more intensively than others, because raw, inferior tobaccos require more intensive treatment than choice, ripe tobaccos.

CAMELS
That is why Camels are so mild. That is why Camels have given more pleasure to more people than any other cigarette ever made.
It's the secret of Camels' rich "bouquet"...their cool flavor...their non-irritating mildness.
Give your taste a chance to appreciate the greater pleasure and satisfaction of the more expensive tobaccos.
